About the course: "Auto Theft Investigation"

use of bait cars. .

This one (1) day seminar is designed to guide and direct the patrol officer or detective in understanding the highly complicated and sophisticated methods of auto theft in the United States. Auto theft is a national crime problem that involves millions of dollars in fraud or theft losses to individuals and the insurance industry. Many law enforcement officers receive little or no training on how to identify and investigate auto theft cases. This training program will enhance your awareness in auto theft investigations and the identification of possible stolen motor vehicles. Discussion will be provided in the technological aspects of auto theft by discussing the most current technology utilized by auto theft offenders and the technology available to law enforcement personnel to combat this problem.

About the instructors:

Mr. Denny Goodhart

Mr. Goodhart is an Ohio State Highway Patrol trooper assigned as an investigator at the Cleveland office of the Patrol. Mr. Goodhart has over twenty years of law enforcement service and has served as a plainclothes investigator in Cleveland for over ten years. Trooper Goodhart is an auto theft expert, having recovered thousands of motor vehicles in his career. He has worked closely with the Cleveland organized crime auto theft task force and has provided training on auto theft investigations to law enforcement officers for over ten years.
